

ABOUT THE ACADEMY

National Academy of Defence Production was established in 1978 for providing professional training to the officers of Indian Ordnance Factories Service (IOFS). Over the years, the Institution has systematically developed and expanded its activities and acquired the stature of a National Training Institute for Group 'A' officers. Presently NADP is conducting several streams of training programmes for all levels of managers of the Ordnance Factories and some other Defence/Govt. Organisations.

Situated in beautiful surroundings, resplendent with gardens and lush green lawns, just 12 Kms away from Nagpur City, the Academy has got its self-contained campus providing educational, residential and recreational facilities. It provides an environment conducive for assimilation of knowledge, sharpening of skills and development of attitude towards application of new concepts to real life situations.

The Academy has got well appointed training facilities. There are four lecture halls equipped with different audio-visual teaching aids including LCD multimedia projector with PC to wall projection. Technical Library at NADP is fully computerised and equipped with over 8000 books of Management and Engineering subjects and 270 educational video-cassettes. Besides, it also subscribes to 30 periodicals of importance and interest to managers. Information Technology Centre at NADP has a 35 node LAN for practical hands on training supported by variety of software and sufficient number of Pentium PCs. The Technical Exhibit Centre has got a vast collection of munition products of Ordnance Factories used by the Indian Army.

Welfare facilities include a Gymnasium and a Staff Club where billiards, badminton, tennis, volley ball and table tennis are open to the participants. Yoga has become part of the curriculum for probationary officers.

The Institute is doing its best to accomplish the avowed objective namely "achieving excellence in education and customer satisfaction". In recognition to this, the Academy has been accredited with the coveted ISO-9001 certification - a rare distinction to an academic institution in the country.
